on all platforms

As a long-time music lover, Maggie has decided to jump into the music industry. Going to over a hundred shows, from huge festivals to small local shows with 10 other people, she has been able to create relationships with bands and their crew. Wanting to always create a safe environment for artists, she has learned about them and what their comfortable with. Right now, she reviews shows, albums, songs, and artists on her Instagram @DidiyayReviews and with Backward Noise, an Indie Publication. She just started and loves to interview artists about their work!

Maggie graduated Paul Mitchell the School Esani in 2017, getting her master cosmetology license. While she doesn't work behind the chair anymore, she stays up to date with trends and takes classes to maintain her knowledge. Being apart of a creative team for an artist would be a wonderful way to combine the two passions she has.

Maggie is continuing her education to aid her with her new venture into the industry. Currently being enrolled in Music Industry Essentials through NYU, as well at Executive Fan program to learn all the ins and out of the industry. She is trying to find her way in this industry, so these programs are helping guide the way.

She is hard working, determined, and passionate. Music has fueled her in her hard times, and been something that helped her celebrate her good times. She is a kitty mama to Simba, and likes to write songs in her spare time. She loves to travel, and meet new people. Reach out to her via social media to start a fun friendship or creative adventure!
