

AIYANA FLOWERS

Sometimes, things you find an interest for starts from somewhere you wouldn't think the last of being originated from. Something that stuck forever is the love of music. There are so many different genres and it can appeal to any audience. It's so great to see how that works. After gaining the love for music after listening to oldies hip hop from the 70s through the 90s, seeing what more there is to offer became an interest for Aiyana.

While gaining interest in music, she found a love for all genres and how there can be music to any kind of beat that could make someone fascinated. Not knowing more about what it is like working in the music industry other than an artist putting out music, Aiyana was curious.

After attending her first concert in 2017, learning what it is like to help put on a show through tour management, event planning, or just getting the word out made Aiyana start to figure out what exactly she wanted to do in her future. It's still a working process on trying to figure out what exactly Aiyana wants to do but working in the music industry is the prime goal.
